COLLEGE DIABETES NETWORK ANNOUNC PARTNERSHIP WITH XERIS PHARMACEUTICALS

BOSTON, MA: The College Diabetes Network (CDN) is excited to announce that Xeris Pharmaceuticals, a biopharm company developing the next generation of injectable drugs that address critical unmet medical needs, has joined Corporate Member.

Xeris is currently developing multiple forms of a stable glucagon that upon approval can be used in pen form to treat moderate lows, a new form of rescue glucagon for emergency hypoglycemia, and in upcoming closed-loop system.

College Diabetes Network (CDN) is a non-profit organization whose mission is to provide innovative peer based programs which connect and empower students and young professionals to thrive with diabetes.

"We are very excited to partner with Xeris Pharmaceuticals. CDN enjoys working with companies that offer innovative therapies which will improve the lives of people with diabetes." says Christina Roth, CEO and Founder of the College Diabetes Network. "As one of the few companies working to introduce a stable glucagon solution to PWDs, we are so excited to get the chance to have the voice of our young adult members help to drive this innovation."

"At a crossroads with many new decisions, experiences, and responsibilities, students shouldn't approach diabetes issues alone," says Paul Edick, CEO of Xeris Pharmaceuticals. "Learning to manage a challenging disease needs real knowledge, available tools, and active support as they build skills to succeed over a lifetime. CDN is a powerful coalition for young adults with type 1 diabetes. Xeris Pharmaceuticals is honored to be an active member of this community and shares in its mission."

About CDN's Corporate Member Program

CDN created a Corporate Membership program in an effort to build a sustainable business model to support its program and as a way to engage industry partners in building an "ecosystem" of support for young adults. Corporate Membership provides industry partners a way to better connect with and understand young adults with diabetes. In addition, partnering with industry partners allows CDN to bring the voice of young adults with diabetes directly to the decision makers at these companies. CDN's Corporate Membership structure was built carefully, and transparency is a key consideration for CDN and its partners.

About Xeris Pharmaceuticals:

Xeris is a Chicago, IL and Austin, TX-based, specialty biopharmaceutical company developing improved and different injectable therapeutics for multiple indications including diabetes. The company's proprietary XeriSol™ and XeriJ formulation technologies allow for the subcutaneous and intradermal delivery of highly concentrated, non-aqueous formulations of peptides, proteins, antibodies and small molecules using auto-injectors, multi-dose pens and Xeris' proprietary formulation platforms have the potential to offer distinct advantages over existing products and formulations including: up to 1000-fold lower injection volumes, long term room-temperature stability, elimination of reconstitution and refrigeration, all of which can lead to products that are easier to use by patients, caregivers, healthcare practitioners, and can reduce costs for payers and the healthcare system.
